DEATH OF BROKER KISSAM.

Bright's Disease Carries Off the Late W. H. Vanderbilt's Brother-in-Law. Peter R. Kissam. a well-known member of the Stock Exchange, and brother-in-law of the late William H. Vanderbilt, died this morning shortly after 7 o'clock in the private hospital o Spear on Montague street, Brooklyn, of Bright's disease. Mr. Kissam had been a member of the Exchange since July 22, 1864, and was very popchange since July 22, 1864, and was very popular among the Wall street men because of his generous and social qualities.

He was fifty-five years of age, and his birth-place was Brooklyn. He was the youngest of three sons of flev. Samuel Kiesam, of the Dutch Informed Church. His brothers are still living. Miss Maggle Rissam, the eldest sister of the doceased, married William H. Vanderbilt, and the youngest sister is Mrs. M. S. Bromley, of 9 West Fifty-third street.

The dead financier lived in Brooklyn until a year ago, when he took apartments in the Fiormore, at Fourth avenue and Eighteenth street, in this city. He leaves a wife, two sons and two langthers.
